CHAPTER II HENRY ENFIELD ROSCOE--BIRTH AND EDUCATION Henry Roscoe brought his young wife to 10 Powis Place, Great Ormond Street, London, and here on January 7, 1833, his only son, Henry Enfield Roscoe, first saw the light. A daughter, Harriet, was born in 1836. The young judge had little opportunity of making provision for his family, and on his death they were left with very straitened means. His widow moved with her children into a small cottage at Gateacre, and as she had considerable artistic gifts sought to add to her slender income by teaching water-colour painting at a girls school in the vicinity. She also possessed some of the literary power of her distinguished grandfather, and in 1868 published a Life of Vittoria Colonna, with admirable translations of the sonnets. She was a strong, vigorous character, devotedly attached to her son and proud of...
